

In the name of Allah

During the New Year holidays, my family and I traveled to Turkey. We went on this trip with my aunt. For the first few days we stayed in a very luxurious hotel where we spent most of our time at the pool. But after a few days when my aunt joined us, we went to another hotel and that hotel was also very good. At that time we were out every day. One day we went to the market and left our car in the parking lot, but we were not paying attention and the lights inside the car remained on. After 4 hours, when we returned to our car, we saw that the car does not start because the battery is dead. So we had to start the car to start. It was a very bad situation in a strange country, in the crowded market, we were pushing a car on the highway. Instead of helping and pushing, my mother was filming us and laughing. We pushed the car so much that we reached a slope, but the car still didn't start, and finally, a person on the same slope with our car battery to battery and helped us. I am really grateful. In short, this was just a part of our troublesome and exciting trip to Turkey.
